This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

INTRODUCTION

I

HISTORY

Soon after I had been elected to a Fellowship at Trinity College my friend Dr Luard introduced me to the fascinating subject of Dr Bentley; and I began without delay to collect the tracts (as they are usually called) relating to his controversy with his College. In those days it was far easier to buy such things at a small price than it is now; and my collection soon became respectable. As time went on I enlarged the field of my research, and determined to become the possessor of all Bentley's editions and of his various other works, such as his Sermons, Proposals for a new edition of the Greek Testament, etc., which he issued from time to time. As long as Luard lived, I used to discuss my collection with him, and urge him to prepare a bibliography of Bentleiana, which, strange to say, has never been given in full by any of Bentley's biographers. It has always appeared to me specially strange that Bishop Monk should not have added this to his other acts of pious care for Bentley's reputation: for he unquestionably had access to several pieces which it is now difficult, if not impossible, to trace. For such a work Luard was admirably qualified. He had the requisite technical knowledge of books; he was well versed in the history of classical scholarship during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries; and, for the events of Bentley's Mastership, he knew as much about them and the Fellows of the College of that day, as if he had himself been one of the Society. But I could never persuade him to begin. Had he once begun he would assuredly have also finished, for he had extraordinary perseverance, and I do not think that he ever left a task half done. When Luard died in 1891 I found that he had bequeathed to me not only his University pamphlets, but also his Bentleiana. By this generous gift I became the fortunate possessor of some of the rarest in the series of Bentley tracts.

I now felt that a special obligation was laid upon me to draw up the bibliography which I had once hoped that my friend would write, or at least supervise. But how was I to proceed? I had new and pressing occupations to attend to, and besides, Bibliography had become a science, and the novice who attempts to register books without careful preliminary training, lays himself open to certain condemnation. So I searched for a collaborator, or rather, for some one who would undertake the really important part of the work, the bibliography, leaving to me the introduction and the index. My good fortune caused me to be introduced to Mr A. T. Bartholomew, of Peterhouse. He was then, as now, an assistant in the University Library, employed on the catalogue of Lord Acton's books; and, from information given to me by the Librarian and others capable of forming an opinion, was just the man I wanted. Their recommendations have been fully justified by the result. We have worked together for nearly three years, and I have every reason to be more than satisfied with the skill, the diligence, and the historical acumen, with which he has executed his task. As the whole of the bibliography has been written by him, it is easy to see that he is not a mere cataloguer. He has obtained a thorough grasp of the subject, and has added notes, where needed, illustrating many points hitherto left obscure in Bentley's life.

ARRANGEMENT

The arrangement of the long and varied series of publications with which we have had to deal has given us much anxiety. Our first idea was to arrange the publications, whether written by Bentley or by others, in strict chronological order; but we soon found that this would lead to obscurity rather than to clearness, as Bentley was frequently engaged at nearly the same time in studies of the most diverse character. Our final arrangement is as follows:

I.	Sermons and Charges	Theological
II.	Discourse of Free-Thinking	Theological
III.	New Testament	Theological
IV.	Phalaris Controversy	Classical
V.	Classics	Classical
VI.	Trinity College and the University
VII.	Miscellanea
VIII.	Collected Works and Correspondence
IX.	Biography and Criticism.

As far as possible chronological order has been observed in each group; but later editions and translations of any work are described immediately after the first edition, and works immediately bearing on any other work are described in connection with it.

We are aware that Bentley's first published work is the Epistola ad Millium published in 1691 (no. 137); but after this an interval of six years occurs before his first Dissertation upon the Epistles of Phalaris (no. 94) was published. We therefore begin with Sermons, because his Boyle Lectures occur in regular sequence in 1692 and 1693. And although there is an interval of more than twenty years before Phileleutherus Lipsiensis published his Remarks upon a late Discourse of Free-Thinking (no. 49) it appeared reasonable to place these two groups in juxta-position as they both deal with the confutation of Atheism, and to join with them the group dealing with the proposed edition of the New Testament.

The juxta-position of the Phalaris Controversy with Bentley's editions and emendations of Greek and Latin authors is so obvious as to need no explanation. It must, however, be distinctly understood that no attempt has been made to notice all editions of Greek and Latin authors published since Bentley's death with his notes or emendations, when those notes or emendations were originally published during his life. But in the second division of this section we have done our best to include all editions containing notes or emendations left by him in MS.

Further we have regarded MSS. and Adversaria as not within the scope of the present work. A large body of Adversaria will be found under Bentley in the Catalogue of Printed Books in the British Museum. These include that portion of his library which his nephew and executor gave to his grandson Richard Cumberland, by whom they were sold to Lackington, the well-known bookseller, and by him to the British Museum. A considerable body of Adversaria is also to be found in Trinity College Library; and Dr James's Catalogue of the Western Manuscripts in Trinity Library may be consulted for a description of some interesting MSS. of Bentley preserved there.

We wish our work to be regarded as an Appendix to the elaborate biographies of Bishop Monk and Sir R. C. Jebb. For this reason we do not attempt any notice of Bentley's life, with the exception of a full chronology based on the Annals of Bentley's Life given by Sir R. C. Jebb. In this we have tried to arrange the facts in such a manner as to furnish to those who do not know Bentley a clue to guide them through the labyrinth of his controversies.

We have done our best to make this bibliography complete. Beginning with my own collection, we have searched the University

Library and all the Collegiate Libraries in Cambridge, the Bodleian Library, and that of the British Museum. Notwithstanding this care on our own part, and the information we have gained from friends, we cannot be sure that we have included all that appeared in controversies separated from our own time by nearly two centuries. It is, therefore, with considerable diffidence that we present our bibliography to the public, and we shall be grateful for further information.

Our special thanks are due to the Master and Fellows of Trinity College for their kindness in allowing us to reproduce the portrait of Bentley, now in the dining-room of the Master's Lodge, painted by Sir James Thornhill in 1710; to the Master and Fellows of Sidney Sussex College for the loan of Bentley's Letter (p. 20), with leave to reproduce it; to Dr Sandys, Public Orator, for helpful criticism; to the Librarians of the different Colleges and to Dr Fortescue, Keeper of the Printed Books in the British Museum, who all gave us every facility for studying the collections of Bentley tracts under their care; to C. E. Sayle, M.A. of S. John's College, for help in drawing up the list of Portraits; and to E. J. Worman, M.A. of Christ's College, for careful revision of the proofs of the Bibliography.

An asterisk (*) has been added to each item in my own collection: in other cases the place where a book may be found has been indicated only when the book in question is of some rarity.

The following abbreviations have been used:

B.M. = British Museum.

Dyce = Works of Richard Bentley, D.D. collected and edited by the Rev. Alexander Dyce. [Vols. 1—3. No more appeared.] London, 1836—8.

Jebb = Bentley by R. C. Jebb, M.A. London, 1882.

Monk = Life of Richard Bentley, D.D. by J. H. Monk, D.D. 2nd ed. 2 vols. London, 1833.

T.C.C. = Trinity College, Cambridge.

U.L.C. = University Library, Cambridge.

Wordsworth = Correspondence of Richard Bentley. [Ed. by Christopher Wordsworth.] 2 vols. London, 1842.

We have reprinted in an Appendix (1) A Proposal for building a Royal Library (no. 250); (2) the Latin verses which Bentley contributed to two of those collections which it was the fashion to publish when any public event was important enough to notice (nos. 251, 252); (3) his English stanzas in imitation of Horace (no. 253).

The first of these is a piece of which only one copy is known—and though the ascription of it to Bentley has been called in question—it seems to us to be sufficiently interesting in itself to warrant reproduction; the verses which form the second group are entombed in folios not readily accessible in libraries; while the third, though printed in several places, and notably by Monk, obviously demands the same recognition as the others.

At the end of the Appendix will be found a list of all the known portraits of Bentley. We have been at some pains to make this as complete as possible, as the subject has received little or no attention from Bentley's biographers.

Trin. Col. Jan. 1. 17 16/17.

Yours of Dec. 20th came safely to my Hands, wherein you bid me from common Fame, that in my designd Edition of ye New Testament, I purpose to leave out the Verse of John's Epistle 1. Chap 5 ver. 7.

About a year ago, reflecting upon some Passages of St Jerom that he had adjusted & castigated the then Latin Vulgate to ye best Greek Exemplars, & had kept the very order of ye Words of ye Original: I form'd a Thought, a priori, that if St Jerom's true Latin could be come at, it would be found to agree exactly with ye Greek Text of ye same Age; and so ye old Copies of each Language (if so agreeing) would give mutual Proof, and even Demonstration to each other. Whereupon rejecting the Printed Editions of each, and ye several Manuscripts of seven Centuries and under, I made use of none but those of a Thousand years ago, or above (of wch I have 20 now in my Study, that are with another make 20000 years.) I had ye Pleasure to find, as I presaged, that they agreed exactly like two Tallies, or two Indentures; and I am able from these to lead Men out of ye Labyrinth of 60000 various Lections; (for St Jerom's Latin has as many Varieties as ye Greek) and to give ye Text as it stood in ye best Copies in the Time of the Council of Nice, without ye Error of 50 Words.

Now in this Work I indulge nothing to any Conjecture, not even in a Letter but proceed solely upon Authority of Copies, and Fathers of that Age. And what will be ye Event about ye said Verse of John, I my self know not yet, having not yet all ye Copies that I have information of.

But by this you see, that in my proposed Work, the fate of that Verse will be a mere Question of Fact. You endeavour to prove (and that's all you aspire to,) that it may have been writ by ye Apostle, being consonant to his other Doctrine. This I concede to you; and if ye Fourth Century knew that Text let it come in, in God's Name: But if that Age did not know it, then Arianism in its Height was beat down without ye Help of that Verse: And let ye Fact prove as it will, the Doctrine is unshaken.

Yours Ric. Bentley.

135. Memoirs of the Life and Character of the Late Earl of Orrery, and of the Family of the Boyles. Containing several Curious Facts, and Pieces of History, from the Reign of Queen Elisabeth, to the present Times: Extracted from Original Papers and Manuscripts never yet Printed. With a Short Account of the Controversy between the late Earl of Orrery and the Reverend Doctor Bentley; and some Select Letters of Phalaris, the famous Sicilian Tyrant: Translated from the Greek. By Eustace Budgell Esq;

——Te, animo repetentem Exempla tuorum,
Et Pater Æneas, & Avunculus excitet Hector. Virg.

London: Printed for W. Mears...M.DCCXXXII.

Collation: 8°. pp. xl Dedication to John, Earl of Orrery, Contents + 258 + [2] Advertisements.

Note: Pp. 156—195 are occupied with an account of the Controversy on the Epistles of Phalaris. Mr Budgell sums up the case as follows: 'In short, the Doctor lost, and Mr. Boyle got a great deal of Credit by this Controversy: The World was pleased to see a Young Man of Quality and Fortune get the better of an old Critick.' With a portrait of Charles Boyle, 4th Earl of Orrery, engraved by Baron. Ed. 2 appeared in 1732; ed. 3 in 1737.

*136. The Epistles of Phalaris. Translated from the Greek. To which are added, Some Select Epistles of the most eminent Greek Writers. By Thomas Francklin, M.A. Fellow of Trinity-College, Cambridge. London: Printed for R. Francklin...MDCCXLIX.

Collation : 8°. Title, pp. 82.

Note : Called on p. 1 'An Account of Dr Bentley's Case. In Answer to a Pretended Full and Impartial Account, &c.' Errata on p. 82. This piece, which Monk attributes to Bentley himself (II. 75, 76), was written by John Byrom of Manchester (1692—1763). He was educated at Merchant Taylors' School and Trinity College, Cambridge (B.A. 1711; Fellow, 1714; M.A. 1715), and became an intimate friend of Bentley and of his family. He celebrated Bentley's younger daughter, Joanna, in a Pastoral which appeared in the Spectator, No. 603, October 6, 1714. (Reprinted in Byrom's Poems, ed. A. W. Ward, Vol. I. p. 1 foll. Cp. Monk, II. 113—14.) His authorship in the present instance is placed beyond doubt by a series of letters addressed by him to a Mr Stansfield in London, to whom the MS. of this tract had been transmitted for printing there. These interesting letters are preserved in the Chetham Library at Manchester, and will be printed in a supplementary volume of Dr Ward's edition of Byrom's Poems, shortly to be published for the Chetham Society.

*238. A Vindication of the University of Cambridge. In Answer to a Scurrilous Pamphlet, Intituled, Animadversions upon the University's Proceedings against the most Learned Richard Bentley, D.D. In which the Gross Falshoods, Inconsistences, and Blunders of the Author of that Pamphlet are Consider'd, and fully Exposed. By a Lover of Truth. London, Printed for J. Robarts...1722. [Price 4*d.*]

Collation : 8°. pp. 23.

Note : A MS. note on the copy described states Zachary Grey to be the author. Monk, II. 179.

*239. Jus Academicum : or, a Defence of the Peculiar Jurisdiction which belongs of Common Right to Universities in general, and hath been granted by Royal Charters, confirm'd in Parliament, to those of England in particular. Shewing that no Prohibition can lie against their Courts of Judicature, nor Appeal from them, in any Cause like that which is now depending before the Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge. With a Full Account and Vindication of the Proceedings in that Cause. By a Person Concern'd.

How come our Universities and Colleges to be in a worse Condition than any Abroad; when there are not greater Privileges given to any, nor enjoy'd for a longer Time, than have been by Ours? Shall the Noble Endowments of Our Colleges, which are the Honour of Our Nation, the Nurseries of Our Church, the Envy of Foreigners, and the Eye-sore of none but such as hate Learning and ingenuous Education, make them become an easier Prey to such Unquiet Spirits as by Law Suits and Unstatutable Appeals would Overthrow that Power which preserves them in a State of Tranquillity, without which they can never Attain the End of their Institution? Bp. Stillingfleet.

Jura negat sibi nata, nihil non arrogat. Hor.

Collation: 4°. Title, pp. [vi] Dedication to Dr Snape + 24.

Note: With a plan of the Library. Bentley prosecuted Middleton for the reflections on the Judges of the King's Bench contained in the Dedication of this piece. Monk, II. 199 foll.

*241. An Argument to Prove, That the XXXIXth Section of the Lth Chapter of the Statutes given by Queen Elizabeth to the University of Cambridge, includes the Old Statutes, of that University: And, That all those Old Statutes are not Repealed by the Statutes of Queen Elizabeth. Together with an Answer to the Argument: And the Author's Reply to that Answer. London: Printed in the Year M.DCC.XXVII.

Collation: 4°. pp. 88.

Note: By John Burford, Fellow of King's College (B.A. 1706; M.A. 1710). The Answer by Bentley. According to Monk (II. 243 foll.) each of the three parts was published separately. In this form no trace of them is discoverable.

APPENDIX

I

A Proposal for building
A Royal LIBRARY,
And establishing it by
Act of Parliament*

The Royal Library now at St. James's, designed and founded for publick use, was in the time of King James I. in a flourishing condition, well stored with all sorts of good Books of That and the preceding Age, from the beginning of Printing.

But in the succeeding Reigns it has gradually gone to Decay, to the great dishonour of the Crown and the whole Nation. The Room is miserably out of Repair ; and so little, that it will not contain the Books that belong to it. A Collection of ancient Medals, once the best in Europe, is embezzled and quite lost. There has been no supply of Books from abroad for the space of Sixty years last : nor any allowance for Binding ; so that many valuable Manuscripts are spoil'd for want of Covers : and above a Thousand Books printed in England, and brought in Quires to the Library, as due by the Act for Printing, are all unbound and useless.

It is therefore humbly proposed, as a thing that will highly conduce to the Publick good, the Glory of His Majesty's Reign, and the Honour of the Parliament ;

* Reprinted from a copy in the British Museum. See Bibliography, no. 250.

I. That His Majesty be graciously pleased to assign a Corner of St. James's Park, on the South side, near the Garden of the late Sir John Cutler, for the building of a new Library, and in the Neighbourhood of it a competent Dwelling for the Library-Keeper.

II. This Situation will have all the advantages that can be wished. 'Tis an elevated Soil, and a dry sandy Ground; the Air clear, and the Light free; the Building, not contiguous to any Houses, will be safer from Fire; a Coach-way will be made to it out of Tuttle-street, Westminster; the Front of it will be paralell to the Park-Walk; and the Park will receive no Injury, but a great Ornament by it.

III. That the said Library be built, and a perpetual yearly Revenue for the Purchase of Books setled on it by Act of Parliament: Which Revenue may be under the Direction and Disposal of Curators, who are from time to time to make report to His Majesty of the State and Condition of the Library. The Curators to be.....

IV. The choice of a proper Fund, whence the said Revenue may be raised, is left to the Wisdom of the Parliament. In the mean time, This following is humbly offer'd to Consideration.

V. That, as soon as the present Tax of 40 per Cent., upon Foreign Paper, and 20 per Cent upon English, shall either expire or be taken off; there be laid a very small Tax of ... per Cent. (as it shall be judged sufficient for the uses of such a Library) upon Imported Paper only, leaving our own Manufacture free. Which Tax may be collected by His Majesty's Officers of the Customs, and paid to such Person or Persons, as shall be appointed by the Curators.

VI. This being so easie a Tax, and a Burthen scarce to be felt, can create no Damp upon the Stationer's Trade. And whatsoever shall be paid by them upon this foot, being to be laid out in the Purchase of Books, will return among them again. So that 'tis but giving with one hand, what they will receive with the other.

VII. And whereas our Own White-Paper Manufacture, that was growing up so hopefully, and deserves the greatest Encouragement, being all clear gains to the Kingdom, is now almost quite sunk under the weight of the present tax; this new one upon Imported Paper, with an Exemption of our Own, will set Ours upon the higher Ground, and give it a new Life. For whatsoever is taken from the one, is as good as given to the other. So that even without regard to this design of a Library, the Tax will be a publick Benefit.

VIII. A Library erected upon this certain and perpetual Fund, may be so contriv'd for Capaciousness and Convenience, that every one that comes there, may have 200,000 Volumes, ready for his use and service. And Societies may be formed, that shall meet, and have Conferences there about matters of Learning. The Royal Society is a noble Instance in one Branch of Knowledge; what Advantage and Glory may accrue to the Nation, by such Assemblies not confined to one Subject, but free to all parts of good Learning.

IX. The Wall that shall encompass the Library, may be cased on the inside with Marbles of ancient Inscriptions, Basso Relievo's, &c. either found in our own Kingdom, or easily and cheaply to be had from the African Coast, and Greece, and Asia the Less. Those few Antiquities procured from the Greek Islands by the Lord Arundel, and since published both at home and abroad, are an evidence what great advancement of Learning, and honour to the Nation may be acquired by this means.

X. Upon this Parliamentary Fund, the Curators, if occasion be, may take up Money at Interest, so as to lay out two or three years Revenues to buy whole Libraries at once: As at this very time, the incomparable Collections of Thuanus in France, and Marquardus Gudius in Germany, might be purchas'd at a very low Value.

XI. And since the Writings of the English nation have at present that great Reputation abroad, that many Persons of all Countries learn our Language, and several travel hither for the advantage of Conversation: 'Tis easie to foresee, how much this Glory will be advanced, by erecting a free Library of all sorts of Books, where every Foreigner will have such convenience of studying.

XII. 'Tis our Publick Interest and Profit, to have the Gentry of Foreign Nations acquainted with England, and have part of their Education here. And more Money will be annually imported and spent here by such Students from abroad, than the Whole Charge and Revenue of the Library will amount to.

[Verses on the death of Prince William, 1700*.]

QUID querar? An proprio sub pondere Magna fatiscunt,
Et Natura labat dotibus ipsa suis?
Sic moriens, GULIELME, & sceptra & vota tuorum
Destituens, brevis heu Spes, diuturnus Amor.
An potiùs, terras Deus indignatus inertes,
Illustres Animas ad supera alta vocat?
Nec moreris, GULIELME, volas sed vivus ad astra,
Ætheriis vectus qualis Enochus equis.
Et positis novus exuviis, roseo ore refulges
Inter cælicolas conspiciendus Avos.
Interea flendo nos frustra ducimus horas,
Viventi & cassas solvimus exsequias.
Scilicet: at sine Te tristi hic marcescere in ævo,
Illud erit nobis, bis, GULIELME, mori.

I. Ad REGINAM.

ACCIPE communis solatia publica luctus,
ANNA, nec alloquiis dulcibus obde fores.
Namque ut Marlburii percussit nuntius aures,
Dum tibi per Flandras fulminat ense plagas;
Oppetiisse tuæ, REGINA, Animæque Torique
Participem, ac morbo succubuisse gravi:
NON, ait ardentem lacrimis restinguere curam
Nunc opus, aut querulis perdere verba modis.
Pro lacrimis, refluant hostili sanguine rivi:
Pro questu, reboent tympana mixta tubis.
DIXIT: & attoniti dira formidine Galli
Bruxellis trepidæ terga dedere fugæ:
Objectoque alii tentantes flumine Martem
De Scaldi in Stygias præcipitantur aquas.

II. Allocutio ad SEPULCHRUM.

DELUBRA Regum, prisca Manium domus,
Suprema Britonum Principum palatia,
Horrore dio plena, plena numine;
Laxate claustra, ferreosque liminis
Reserate postes: GEORGII Magni sacer
Portatur ad vos lugubri pompa Cinis,
Uxoris ANNÆ atque ANGLIÆ lacrimis madens.
Eheu! quis hostis Gallus, aut quis impiæ
Romæ tyrannus coccinatus, non tuo
Dolore doleat, ANNA, non flenti affleat?
Huic ô quietas intimis Penetralibus
Parate sedes; qua (nefas) tot Liberûm
Jacent acerbo rapta fato corpora:

  Must stoop as delving Woodward low.

Who studies ancient laws and rites,
  Tongues, arts, and arms, and history,
Must drudge like Selden days and nights,
  And in the endless labour die.

Who travels in religious jars
  (Truth mixt with error, shade with rays,)
Like Whiston wanting pyx or stars,
  In ocean wide or sinks or strays.

But grant our hero's hope long toil
  And comprehensive genius crown,
All sciences, all arts his spoil,
  Yet what reward, or what renown?

Envy, innate in vulgar souls,
  Envy steps in and stops his rise;
Envy, with poison'd tarnish fouls
  His lustre, and his worth decries.

He lives inglorious, or in want,
  To college and old books confin'd;
Instead of learn'd he's call'd pedant,
  Dunces advanc'd he's left behind:
Yet left content, a genuine stoic he,
Great without patron, rich without South-sea.
